The 75th annual New England Golden Gloves Tournament of Champions, which is held each year at the Lowell Memorial Auditorium, has been postponed and is now tentatively scheduled to begin in April 2021. The tournament which usually occurs mid-January through early March, was postponed with the hopes that by the spring the country will be in a better place as it pertains to the health crisis.

The National Golden Gloves Tournament of Champions, which is slated to be held in Tulsa, Oklahoma, is also being postponed from its planned dates in May. A late-summer start time for the Nationals would accommodate the postponements of the regional tournaments that precede it.
